Ford's 6.7 Powerstroke turbodiesel is the ultimate engine for performance and towing. The 6.2 and 7.3 gas engines simply cannot compete with the torque the 6.7 diesel has to offer. That said, both the gas engines are capable performers and the Powerstroke is simply overkill for many F250 and F350 owners.

Figure 1. '04 - '08 F-150 engine bay. The transmission fluid dipstick is circled in red. Most Ford F-150 trucks have the transmission dipstick located to the immediate left, or on the passenger side. It looks like a bright yellow ring. However, newer truck models with the 6R80 will have a hidden dipstick located on the actual transmission body.
